MEMBERS

The Microinsurance Network is a membership association of funders, promoters, technical assistance providers, researchers, practitioners, and anyone involved in promoting the development and proliferation of good-value insurance products for low-income persons.

The Microinsurance Network currently has over 40 institutional members and just under 20 individual members. With each organisation having on average 3 members, the Microinsurance Network is represented by over 150 people, all of whom are active in microinsurance, the Network and/or the Working Groups.

HOW TO BECOME A MEMBER

Any organisation or individual involved in microinsurance, committed to contributing to public goods and, share the Microinsurance Network's mission can apply for membership online at www.microinsurancenetWORK.org

New membership applications are reviewed by the Executive Committee for validation.

The Microinsurance Network is a collection of organisations and individuals who believe that insurance has the potential to provide valuable protection to low-income households. The Network strives to enable insurance to live up to that potential, by promoting appropriate regulations, highlighting success stories, sharing tools and lessons, and raising awareness among key stakeholders.

CRAIG CHURCHILL, ILO and Microinsurance Network Chair

Being a small, dedicated organisation, the Microinsurance Network helps us to leverage our work. We would never have achieved the same impact with the key performance indicators for microinsurance without the Network. It is an excellent platform for exchanging, communicating and collaborating with our microinsurance colleagues.

BERT OPDEBEECK, BRS and facilitator of the Performance Indicators Working Group

The recent attention on microinsurance is welcome - it is one of the financial services with the greatest potential to help poor people manage risks. The Microinsurance Network brings together diverse disciplines, perspectives, and approaches to advance a common vision. It has quickly become the "go to" place on poor people's access to insurance.

ALEXIA LATORTUE, CGAP and member of the Executive Committee
